

CALL FOR ARTISTS

Art on Caregiving, Aging, Death and Dying

ArtReach St. Croix is seeking artists who have created work around the themes of caregiving, aging, death and dying to be part of an exhibition as part of NEA Big Read in the St. Croix Valley.

NEA Big Read in the St. Croix Valley is a regional month-long program that features multi-disciplinary art events, including visual arts exhibitions, focused on themes found in the selected book. This year's book is Can't We Talk About Something More Pleasant: A Memoir by Roz Chast.

Chast, a long-time cartoonist for the New Yorker, tells the story of her parents' final years through cartoons and prose. As an adult child who reluctantly becomes a caregiver for her aging parents, Chast's memoir reflects a common story in all of its pity, love, resentment and bewilderment. It is filled with humor, cringe-worthy moments and unavoidable things that many are likely to face.

Art on Caregiving, Aging, Death and Dying will encourage artists and viewers to consider the emotions, struggles and joys that surround an aging population and the loved ones called on to be caregivers. It will also give space to grief and remembrance for loved ones no longer with us.

All forms of creative work are encouraged. All media, subjects and styles are welcome including—but not limited to—painting, fibers, printmaking, sculpture, glass, pottery, jewelry, mixed media and photography. All applications will be reviewed by members of ArtReach's Visual Arts Committee to ensure the appropriate mix of work for the exhibition.

Artists living and/or working in the St. Croix Valley are encouraged to submit applications. Artists can submit up to three pieces of work for consideration. Artists are encouraged to submit a brief statement about their work and how it reflects caregiving, aging or death and dying, but it is not required.

This is ArtReach St. Croix's ninth year hosting NEA Big Read in the St. Croix Valley.
